Enhance your practice + develop foundation for further research

Bachelor of Fine Arts (Honours)

Studio Research and Critical Contexts are the two components of this programme. Both courses work to develop and integrate contextual, theoretical, and studio-based learning centred on in-depth research projects. The programme culminates in a final exhibition or presentation of studio research outcomes and an accompanying written research summary.

The Honours qualification provides a foundational pathway for further research in a higher degree.

Graduates of this programme will be able to

- Critically analyse and adapt relevant conceptual, critical and theoretical frameworks to independent studio-based research
- Frame, refine and resolve complex ideas through advanced research methodologies in creative contexts
- Generate and present bodies of work to a professional industry standard, evidencing a contextually informed sustained inquiry
- Reflexively innovate creative practice to connect and confidently contribute to wider contemporary discourses
